

Seminar Specification: Introduction to Legal Terminology

Overview

This is the specification for Forum Legal's half-day Introduction to Legal Terminology seminar aimed at legal translators.

The focus of the seminar is on the legal terminology and phrasing encountered by translators in the course of translating legal documents written in English and the difficulties caused by these.

The seminar has three aims:

- (1) to introduce the main areas of legal terminology and phrasing that cause difficulties;
- (2) to provide participants with the means of resolving such difficulties in their translations; and
- (3) to introduce participants to the key elements of legal writing.

The seminar includes an element of non-compulsory participation, in the form of practical exercises aimed at testing skills in each area discussed.

Training techniques

Each participant will be provided with a comprehensive seminar coursebook in electronic format prior to the seminar. The seminar coursebook draws on our expertise and years of experience of teaching legal English. In addition to exercises to be carried out during the seminar, it contains comprehensive notes on the areas covered. It will therefore be a useful reference resource after the seminar has ended.

Legal English (published by Cavendish-Routledge), written by our managing partner, Rupert Haigh, is a comprehensive guide to legal English. This book can be purchased from the Routledge website (www.routledge.com) or from Amazon (www.amazon.co.uk).

The trainer

The seminar will be conducted by Forum Legal's managing partner, Rupert Haigh.

Rupert Haigh holds an MA (Master of Arts) (1996) in English from Cambridge University and an LLM (Master of Laws) (2001) from Helsinki University. He completed the Common Professional Examination in Law at Bournemouth University and obtained the Diploma of Legal Practice at the Oxford Institute of Legal Practice. He qualified as a Solicitor of the Supreme Court of England and Wales in 1997.

Rupert has three years' experience as a practising solicitor in England. He holds a TEFL (Teaching English as a Foreign Language) certificate and has been training legal professionals both in Finland and in other European countries since 2002.

In addition, he is the author of books on legal English, including the Oxford Handbook of Legal Correspondence (OUP, 2006), and Legal English (Cavendish-Routledge 2004).

Venue

Our clients usually prefer to conduct this half-day seminar at their offices in order to allow participants to check email, take telephone calls and deal with other daily work when not participating in the seminar.

On the other hand, some clients prefer to conduct the seminar outside the office in order to escape the interruptions that are an inevitable part of office routine and focus more intensively on the topics at hand. Therefore, we are very happy to conduct this seminar at any other venue notified to us on reasonable notice.

Suggested content & timetable

The duration of the training is half a day (four hours), with suggested content and timetable as set out below.

Please note that the both the timetable and the topics covered may be tailored to suit your needs more closely – contact Rupert Haigh (see contact details at the bottom of the specification) to discuss this matter.

Content outline

- Introduction to legal terminology: terms of art, foreign terms, abbreviations, false word pairs, problem words.
- Typical phrases: legal phrasal verbs & their usage, legalese, doublets and triplets, operative language.
- Sentence structuring: discourse markers, terms and conditions, exceptions and qualifications, definitions, what to avoid.
